

Appeal

An appeal against a non-final judgment of the court of first instance, triggering a comprehensive review of the judgment, both in terms of infringements of the law and infringements in terms of factual findings and the amount of the penalty. The time limit for filing an appeal is 14 days and runs for anyone entitled to appeal from the date of service of the judgment with the justification. Court proceedings in Poland are multi-instance. District court judgments are appealed against by regional courts, and appeals are heard by regional courts as courts of first instance.