

Stateless

Apatrys, apolida, a person who does not have citizenship of any country. One can be stateless from birth or become one by losing the citizenship of one country and not obtaining another citizenship. The legal situation of a stateless person is very unfavourable, because in the absence of citizenship he does not enjoy the protection and care of the country of residence or any other state, he does not have political rights, he can be expelled from the country, he is often treated as a foreigner